The records of James are of the most meager description. It is certain, however, that he had removed to Orange Co., N. Y., prior to the breaking out of the Revolutionary War. He signed the Association to support the Continental Congress, at Goshen Precinct, Orange Co., N. Y., 21 June, 1775.* He also appears to have been elected Ensign of the Chester Company, of the West Orange Regt.† He also appears as "one of the scouts, who served Apl., 5-6, being two days in conveying certain tory prisoners from Warwick Mountain to Kings Town" (probably Kingston).‡ That he served through the Revolution is certain, but as there was another James Parshall (b. 1762), who served in the latter part of the War, it is not always possible to determine from the official records one from the other. It is believed that he removed after the close of the War to Western New York, and located in or near Palmyra, Wayne Co., but as the other James Parshall above referred to, located in the same place the difficulty of distinguishing them is increased. With him, came to Western New York, a sister, who had previously married _____Terry, and whose daughter, Deliverance, subsequently became the wife of his brother Israel's son Israel. A very old lady, Mrs. Zuby Griswold, a granddaughter of his brother Israel, made a statement in 1870, which was reduced to writing and is preserved in the records of this branch of the family,* as follows:

"Israel Parshall had three brothers, Jesse, of Orange Co., James, who died in the Lake Country and Benjamin who died young. I saw only James. There was also one sister Delilah."

There is no direct evidence that Samuel was the son of James, but the question does not seem to admit of much doubt. None of the other sons of Israel³ were old enough to have had a son in 1757, except Israel, and we have the complete list of his children from records of undoubted authenticity. He was certainly not a son of David,³ for David mentions all his sons by name in his Will. He was not the son of Jonathan,³ for Jonathan was living in Orange Co., in 1757, and it is certain that Samuel was born on Long Island and probably grew to manhood there. Moreover, we have a pretty accurate list of Jonathan's sons from family and other authentic records. I have in my possession a copy of a letter written by James Parshall [306], great grandson of Samuel², to Asa Parshall [150], a grandson of Israel,⁴ dated Titusville, Pa., 3 Nov. 1877, in which the writer says: "I have heard my mother mention the names of friends the same as you mention—Asa, Israel, Jesse, and others; also of relatives at Canandaigua Springs, N. Y." The evidence, though circumstantial, seems to be nearly conclusive. Samuel must have been either a son or brother of James⁴ and that he was the latter is in the last degree improbable.

Israel Parshall was born on Long Island, subsequently removed to Orange Co., N. Y., where his eldest child, a daughter was born in 1754. He afterward, but at what time is uncertain, removed to Pennsylvania, where he is found with his two eldest sons, at the breaking out of the Revolutionary War. He was a Second Lieutenant, 3d Co., 2nd Battalion, Northumberland Co. (Pa.) Associators, Col. James Potter, 24 Jany., 1776.* It appears from Tax List and other documentary records that he was a resident of Muncy Tp., Northumberland Co. (Pa.), 1783-1787. It is probable that he was then engaged in farming, as he is found assessed for 600 acres of land, with live stock, &c. He also appears to have owned a saw mill and various other property, both real and personal.†

He was among the earliest settlers of the town of Chemung, Chemung Co., N. Y., coming there from Pennsylvania, about 1789. At the treaty with the Indians held at Newtown (now Elmira) in 1790, he was present with his son Asa. A year later he received a deed (dated 22 Jany., 1791, signed by Gov. Clinton) for Lot No. 10, in said town. This lot was situate on Chemung River about 10 miles below the present City of Elmira; here he cleared a farm and spent the remainder of his life.‡ His death was the result of an accident. He started alone to ride a colt to a sugar camp on a winter day. The colt returned alone. Search being immediately instituted, he was found lying by the roadside insensible, and succumbed to the shock and exposure shortly after. It was conjectured that he was thrown from his

of the Revolutionary War. It appears from the Census of 1776,* that he was then a resident of Southold Tp., and it is probable that he was during the War. In 1779, he was obliged, with others, to flee from the Island to escape the persecution of the British force, as appears from the following:

Subsequently he removed to Patchogue, where he had a ship yard. He also was the owner and captain of a merchant vessel with which he made regular trips between New York and the West Indies. This vessel he commanded in person until after the marriage of his daughter Charity to Capt. Brown, when he retired from active command and was succeeded by his son-in-law. On one occasion his vessel was attacked by pirates, whom he defeated after a vigorous resistance. A set of silver buttons

James Parshall was a soldier of the Revolution. "He is recorded as a sergeant in the company commanded by Capt. Samuel Sackett, belonging to the Fourth Regiment of the New York line or Continentals, which regiment was under the command of Col. Henry B. Livingston, also that in the said record the said James Parshall is recorded as having enlisted June 1, 1777, for the war; also that the regiment was employed in active service in the Revolutionary War."† He served until 2 Dec., 1779, when he was granted a furlough, and went to Saybrook, Ct., where his family then was. While there he joined an expedition "for the purpose of detecting and suppressing a plundering party." He was captured in Gardiner's Bay by a British sloop of war and carried prisoner to New York where he was confined on the prison ship Scorpion until the following June. He underwent such hardships while in confinement that he was unable to rejoin his regiment."‡ Many interesting anecdotes of James have been related to me by my uncle, the late John A. Parshall, of Delhi, Delaware Co., N. Y., a grandson of James, who had often listened to his grandfather's relation of his adventures in the Revolution. James was a re-
